JUSTIN TIMBERLAKE:

Council tries to loosen concert tickets

The City Council doesn't want New Yorkers to be locked out when their favorite bands come to town.

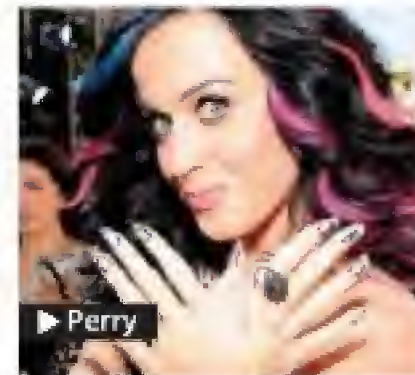

That's what happened in September, when Radiohead played two shows at Roseland Ballroom. Fans said they tried to buy tickets on Ticketmaster and Tickets Now, but seconds after tickets were supposed to be ready, the site said they were unavailable.

Councilman Dan Garodnick will lead a hearing Friday that will address the growing problem of the lack of availability for concert tickets, for shows ranging from Katy Perry to Bruce Springsteen.

Garodnick said automated "bots" are often programmed to buy tickets the second they are released, allowing companies or individuals to resell them at a significant mark-up. Also, artists like Katy Perry withhold tickets, he said.

One idea is requiring venues like Madison Square Garden to post ticket availability, said Garodnick. Another option being considered is requiring a percentage of tickets to be purchased in person.

OWS to homeless: No soup for you!

- Wall Street protesters take measures to deal with vagrants, violence
- May close cafeteria-style kitchen
- NYPD threatens lawsuits if hurt

Zuccotti Park has become so overrun with freeloading homeless folks that protesters say they are considering closing up the 24-7 kitchen.

"Homeless people appear here because they're hungry," protester Barbara Ross, 48, said.

To curb their appetites, protesters are considering shutting down the cafeteria-style food distribution and only giving out food to active protesters, said Ross.

"There have been plans to have food delivered to the working groups," Ross said.

"We're asking them to join many of the working groups, or directing them to a food pantry," she said of the homeless.

The overworked kitchen volunteers are serving an estimated 1,200 people a day, spokesperson Patrick Bruner said, and they just can't take it anymore. "The kitchen team became worried they wouldn't be able to continue to feed everyone," he said.

The once-gourmet menu will be nothing but cold fare for the next three days while the kitchen crew reorganizes, Bruner said.

Security has also been working hard to keep the protests peaceful, Ross said.

"The bad behavior is coming from that south-west corner," Ross said, referring to where homeless people congregate.

► Last Sunday, protesters dined on vegan and traditional chicken salad, bean and cheese quesadillas, fruit cocktail, pumpkin pie and homemade chocolate chip cookies. This weekend, it may be a lot of PB&J.

Quoted

"We don't want to turn our back on the homeless, but we have to balance the needs of the overworked kitchen crew." ROSS

"They're not following the guidelines set up by the general assembly for being nonviolent in the park."

On Wednesday night, 10 people were arrested in a solidarity march with Occupy Oakland because police said they trashed a Tribeca street.

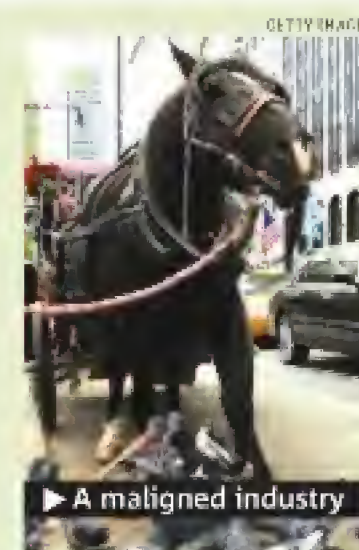

The cops have become so fed up with protesters that the NYPD's Sergeants' Benevolent Association is ready to sue if cops are injured by the demonstrators.

Ed Mullins, president of the SBA, told the New York Post that more than 20 police officers have been injured at OWS protests.

NEW YORK. After a carriage horse collapsed and died on its way to work in Central Park, Mayor Mike Bloomberg defended the carriage horse industry Wednesday, saying that many of the animals taking tourists for scenic rides would be dead if they weren't working. BRADLEY HAWKS

► This sandwich, from Queens Kickshaw, is so much more than just a grilled cheese, says photographer Bradley Hawks.

- Meet the winner of Metro's first-ever 'Food Porn Photo Contest'
- Queens foodie snaps winning shot of fresh mozzarella and smoked cheddar melted between buttery brioche
- Are you salivating yet?

WRITER TURNS LOVE OF FOOD INTO ART

The contest

Earlier this month, Metro asked our readers to submit their most drool-worthy food porn snapshots. Astoria resident Bradley Hawks' grilled cheese masterpiece, above, has been deemed the best.

- Hawks will receive two prizes: The first, a cheese plate valued at $125, featuring a wedge of Jarlsberg, plus goat cheeses, honey creme and wild hibiscus flowers in syrup.
- And that's not all: Hawks will also get a free Nikon D5100 16.2 megapixel digital camera, compliments of Adorama.

We sat down with Astoria resident and freelance writer Bradley Hawks to find out what makes a food porn contest winner.

Tell us about yourself.

A New York City transplant from Indiana eight years ago, I have lived or worked in each of the five boroughs and love that this whole city feels very much like home. I taught fifth grade in the Bronx for four years, but took a break to focus on my writing career. Now a regular contributor to a few publications in the world of food writing, picking up a camera has just been a natural progression. I hope my photos are at least half as much fun as I have had living them in person.

What are your interests?

Food, food, food: Enjoying it, as well as learning and sharing the stories behind it. A friend once said to me, "Food is just the vehicle by which we feed one another in much deeper, meaningful ways," and I believe that. I am also a fan of live theater, day trips, cheese, anything related to Japan, seafood and anything that makes me laugh.

In your opinion, what are the best shooting locations in the city?

I don't think there's a single place unworthy of a camera in New York City, but restaurants are some of my favorite — this city treats food like art. Great shots can also always be found on the Staten Island Ferry.

Do you have any photo tips for shooting food?

"Telling stories with words and photos is therapeutic, and such a cathartic way to share my wonderful life experiences."

HAWKS

Always use natural light, indirect sunlight and no flash. Learn to manipulate the settings on the camera.

What do you look for when photographing food?

I want people to see the food the same way I see it. So Photoshop is not used in any of my pictures.

Do you have a favorite subject?

Eggs. Pictures of eggs are always the most popular and fun to photograph as well.

What's your favorite city in the world?

New York City, no question. It is where you live if you want to live everywhere in the world all at the same time. A five-minute walk can take you into an entirely different universe.

What's your hometown?

Indianapolis, Indiana, is my hometown and will forever be my foundation. It taught me compassion, hospitality and the true value of community and family.

De-Occupy? Protesters plan strike

A war veteran badly wounded in clashes between protesters and police remained in hospital on Thursday as activists called for a general strike against the Bay Area city.

Occupy Oakland organizers said they had voted to stage the strike next week, intending to shut down the city following what a spokeswoman called the "brutal and vicious" treatment of protesters, including former U.S. Marine Scott Olsen.

"We mean nobody goes to work, nobody goes to school, we shut the city down," organizer Cat Brooks said.

Brooks said a general strike was a "natural progression" following the crackdown by the city of Oakland in which protesters were evicted from a plaza and 85 people were arrested. REUTERS

FLAT TAX: NOT SO SIMPLE

Opinion

TOM FOREMAN

POLITICAL CORRESPONDENT
FOR CNN

Metro does not endorse the opinions of the author, or any opinions expressed on its pages. Opposing viewpoints are welcome.

Here is the weirdness of the Internet: We now have more information at our fingertips 24/7 than even the most brilliant scientists had a few decades back. With one touch, we can explore world religions, orangutans or the physics of a curve ball. Once upon a time, we gathered in bars for hours to debate things like, "Whatever happened to Scott Baio?" These days, some jerk just whips out his iPhone. Case closed. Fun over.

And yet, this instant access to superficial knowledge about everything seems to be killing our interest in deeper knowledge about anything. If a concept can't be reduced to a tweet, many of us can't be troubled to take it in. Perhaps that explains the pronounced appetite among voters for tax plans that might have been scratched out in the margin of a newspaper while the candidate's coffee cooled.

9-9-9. The flat tax.

The appeal is obvious: They sound simple. They sound like an antidote to all the complexity that plagues us in our cell phone bills, insurance plans and whatever that stupid discount program is at the grocery store.

But reforming the tax code, even if you think that is a spectacular idea, is inherently complex. Rick Perry practically knitted his brow into a cardigan this week, when he noted that the current tax code is made up of tens of thousands of pages.

Exactly. Tax policy analysts say thinking that such a vast system can be easily reduced to a stack of postcards, without seismic shifts in what we get from and give to our government, is naïve.

Republicans and Democrats alike try to sell such ideas all the time as the very essence of simplicity; whether talking about job creation or trimming the debt. They know pithy statements grab headlines and are easily posted on Facebook.

But voters need to know that such claims, especially with regard to the tax code, are almost always misleading. Those same tax analysts say making such changes would not be like repainting the Capitol, but rather more like replacing the foundation. And as much as we may want it to be simple, it would instead be hugely complicated and full of wild uncertainty.

Five must-see zombie flicks

1: 'DAWN OF THE DEAD': 1978

► Epic, fierce, funny, smart, melancholy, stomach-churning entertainment.

2: 'ZOMBIE': 1979

► The unofficial Italian prequel to Romero's "Dawn," made by splatter master Lucio Fulci. Disgusting.

3: 'RETURN OF THE LIVING DEAD': 1985

► What begins as a spoof of Romero's films slowly evolves into a nightmare soaked in blood and brains.

4: 'TOMBS OF THE BLIND DEAD': 1971

► This Spanish shocker sees rotten, blind templars crawling through crypts.

5: 'THEY CAME BACK': 2004

► Moody, masterful French chiller about the dead trying to re-integrate themselves.

► "The Walking Dead" is based on a graphic novel — quite graphic, actually. The series airs Sundays at 9 p.m. on AMC.

Zombie love is a no-brainer

► The undead invasion is in full swing, as evidenced by the monstrous hordes who are tuning in to 'The Walking Dead' ► Why zombies are a pop-culture staple with staying power

Sparkly vampires are so last year: Zombies are knocking their fellow legions of the undead from their pedestal.

From zombie walks being held in cities across the world to television shows, video games and numerous books hitting stores, people's fascination with zombies is spreading like a plague. "Zombies have the upper hand," says University of British Columbia film studies professor Ernest Mathijs, whose specialties include horror and fantasy.

"Zombies are a kind of ingredient you can add to any cultural product and make it look slightly different," he explains. "It will turn it into a funny parody of contemporary cultures, and somehow that appeals to cultures across the globe."

The idea of zombies originally came from the voodoo culture in Haiti. The word "zombi" was used to describe a brainless slave laborer raised from the dead by a bokor, or sorcerer.

The now-familiar modern zombie was popularized and turned into a phenomenon in 1968 by way of the unexpected popularity of director George Romero's low-budget horror classic "Night of the Living Dead."

Gisele Baxter of UBC's English department, who specializes in gothic culture and post-apocalyptic fiction, says Romero's film took the horror genre one step further. "Romero was influential in spawning everyday horror that doesn't deal with mad scientists or externalized threats, but deals with threats we associate with nightmares, personal threats and very primal fears," she says. (See page 10 for our chat with the legend himself.)

The audience identifies with zombie stories because people today are fascinated and fearful of the possibility of an apocalypse, while the metaphorical possibilities and themes inherent in zombie stories also appeal to modern filmmakers because they can experiment with notions of what people would do to survive in a kill-or-be-killed world.

These undead know no limits, even invading classic literature with "Pride and Prejudice and Zombies," which is being adapted into a film. "When you think of 'Pride and Prejudice,' the last thing you think about is zombies," Baxter says. "The juxtaposition of these immensely different things really fascinated people. Then it spawned a lot of copycat titles, which is very impressive because people found the energy and imagination to do anything with these titles."

Zombify your look for Halloween

Achieving a gory zombie look — complete with sunken eyes and rotting flesh — may seem daunting. But Toronto-based makeup artist Dorota Buczel shows you how in five easy steps.

You'll need liquid latex, tissue paper or cotton balls, multicolor makeup kit (white, black and green), fake blood and white powder.

1

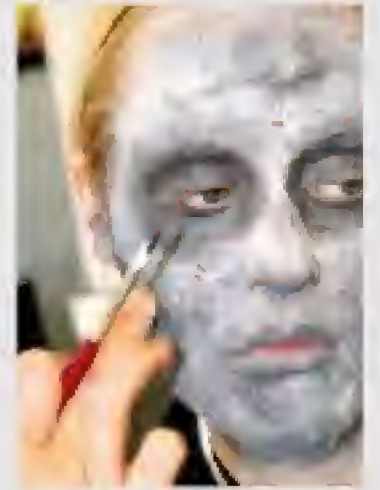

Apply liquid latex over clean skin to create the effect of peeling skin and wounds. For a more dramatic effect, you can mix cotton or pieces of tissue paper with latex. Then start peeling the edges.

2

With a makeup sponge, add a grey or greenish creme makeup base to the entire face, neck and any other exposed skin. All areas of flesh must be covered in makeup.

3

Use the black or dark grey color from the multicolor makeup kit and apply shadows with a sponge or brush around the eyes and cheekbones to achieve a sunken-in look.

4

Add fake blood for desired effect and apply tooth stain.

5

To create wrinkles and creases, squint and pucker up your lips while you apply white powder around your eyes and lips with a sponge.

Zombie legend: George Romero

It's remarkable how the living dead have defined the post-millennium zeitgeist more than any other pop-culture entity.

From Max Brooks' best-selling novel "World War Z" (an upcoming film adaptation will star Brad Pitt) to a glut of first-person shooter video games to mainstream TV, the zombie has mysteriously reached the peak of his popularity.

But it's been a long, slow progression — a road littered with taboo and terror — and most of it can be traced back to the brain of one man, the master of zombie lore, George A. Romero.

It was Romero who, in 1968, took the basic thrust of Richard Matheson's

"I'm thinking of calling the next one 'Enough of the Dead!'"

GEORGE ROMERO

shattering vampire apocalypse novel "I Am Legend" and brought the dead back to life with his game-changing black-and-white masterpiece "Night of the Living Dead."

That film would spawn a series of rip-offs, sequels and eventually spoofs like Edgar Wright's smash-hit comedy "Shaun of the Dead."

Look anywhere and you'll see evidence of the zombie phenomenon surrounding us, trapping us, ready to eat us alive.

And that is what's so spooky about the concept of the zombie. They're us, back from our final rest, hungry to devour the people we once loved. Zombies are ugly, grotesque shadows of their former selves. Zombies are not nice, and if, by some sort of biologically bad stroke of viral luck, Romero's fantastical prophecies were to come true, what would we do? Or more importantly, what shouldn't we do?

CHRIS ALEXANDER

METRO WORLD NEWS IN TORONTO

► "Survival of the Dead"

Do not attempt to out-swim the dead

Zombies aren't bears. As a few unfortunate characters in Romero's 2010 horror-Western "Survival of the Dead" discover, they aren't afraid of the water. Why? Because they don't have to hold their breath — they don't breathe.

Romero: I had underwater stuff in "Land" and "Diary" but really played with it here. There is a lot of humor in "Survival," but it's also really melancholic, less free-and-easy. Though at this stage of my life, I'm thinking of calling the next one — if there is a next one — "Enough of the Dead!"

► "Dawn of the Dead"

Do not take the elevator

In Romero's incredibly influential 1978 epic "Dawn of the Dead," a handful of survivors land their helicopter on the roof of Pittsburgh's Monroeville Mall and block out the corpses, creating a Shangri-la of material bliss. But when the ghouls gain entrance as they always do, chaos ensues. It was successfully remade a few years back.

Romero: "Dawn" is a romp, and I think it's the most entertaining of all the "Dead" films. I really cut loose and did it as "comic book." But there's tragedy in there, too.

► "Land of the Dead"

Do not marginalize or exploit the dead

Romero's post-"Dawn" remake comeback, 2005's "Land of the Dead," saw the late Dennis Hopper as a capitalist swine who allows his fellow Republicans to hide in his multimillion-dollar condo while the dead population are hunted and slaughtered beyond his electrified fences.

Romero: I think ["Land"] was the first time mainstream American critics saw the satire of my work, and I owe it all to George Bush! I think it's all there when Hopper says the line: "We do not negotiate with terrorists."

Spooky sipping

Shelf life

What we're drinking:

Vampire Vineyard's Trueblood Pinot Noir.

What it tastes like: Perfectly respectable pinot noir for everyday drinking, despite its kitschy name.

Fruity and smooth, this Cali wine was aged in French oak barrels and skews noticeably sweet rather than smoky.

Pair it with: Whatever they're serving at the Halloween party. You bought this one for the "Trueblood" label, so don't try to get too fancy. OK? That said, it's an especially easy-drinking bottle of the notoriously versatile wine.

Don't pair it with: Fangs. Take it from us, there is absolutely no way to negotiate a wine glass around those babies, and it will get harder to resist trying as the night goes on.

MONICA WEYMOUTH

More tricks and treats

Vampyre Red Vodka is essentially just vodka with red dye, but we'll bite. The ruby liquid looks great in the gothic bottle, making it the perfect hostess gift to tote along for the girl who will be cleaning fake blood out of her couch for months.

FEAR AND LOATHING WITH JOHNNY DEPP

► The 'Pirates' star discusses his close relationship with legendary gonzo journalist Hunter S. Thompson

Johnny Depp began working to bring Hunter S. Thompson's "The Rum Diary" to the screen shortly after the manuscript — written by Thompson in the 1960s but not published until 1998 — was discovered in the author's attic. In the film, a Thompson-like journalist (Depp) heads for Puerto Rico and becomes intrigued by the local booze and a local woman. With the film finally hitting theaters, Depp shares with Metro memories of his close friendship with the late author.

► Meeting Hunter for the first time

"It was around Christmas time of 1994. I was in Aspen, and this friend of mine said, 'You should come to the Woody Creek Tavern. I'll have Hunter come down if you want to meet him.' Somewhere around midnight the front door opened and all I could see initially were sparks — just sparks shooting everywhere, and then people jumping for cover. You could hear this sort of muffled, 'Out of my way, you bastards!' The sea parted, and the sparks stopped and he arrived right in front of me, and then this Southern gentleman came over and said, 'My name's Hunter, how do you do?' And that was it. From that second on, if we were apart we were on the phone constantly. It was a love affair, a major love affair that hung around until he made his exit."

► Keeping up with the King of Gonzo Journalism

"We shared the same sense of adventure. One of the things I'll cherish all my life is that whenever Hunter felt the need to wander out and explore, he'd call me. He'd say, 'Colonel' — he used to call me Colonel, Col. Depp — 'Colonel, I need you in Havana in a week.' I was in the middle of a film in England. I said,

'I think I could probably work it out, all right.' And then you find yourself on a plane to Havana."

► Learning of Hunter's suicide

"If you really spent time with him and you knew how he ... dictated the way he was going to live his life, you knew he wasn't going to be the guy who just sort of slipped off the chair and went away. You knew it was going to be self-inflicted."

"We were on a book tour, and he wanted me to go on the road with him as his road manager and as his head of security. He would refer to me as Ray, his head of security. And they were like, 'That's Johnny Depp.' And he'd go, 'No! His name is Ray.' We ended up in San Francisco because his back went out on him on the tour. 'In Time'
Director: Andrew Niccol
Cast: Justin Timberlake, Amanda Seyfried, Cillian Murphy
Rating: PG-13
Grade: D+

He may be able to sing and dance, but Justin Timberlake is no movie star, and "In Time" is proof of that. A sci-fi thriller that stalls in the opening minutes, "In Time" attempts to posit a future where time is literally money. While hotel rooms will cost months off your mortality in the future, this "Twilight Zone"-like spectacle will only cost you about two hours — but even that is too much.

No one ever thought this day would come, but it could be possible that Johnny Depp has reached his saturation point. The culprit is obviously his eyeliner-addicted Captain Jack Sparrow of the "Pirates of the Caribbean" franchise, which never seems to die. But as Paul Kemp in "The Rum Diary," Depp again revisits with mixed results another of his most notable roles. In the adaptation of Hunter S. Depp's performance is reasonably toned down, but for all the story's interesting quirks, the plot rambles in too many directions. The best bits play in-Giovanni Ribisi pulls off a Christian Bale-esque transformation to play one of Kemp's perpetually blind-drunk San Juan Star newspaper colleagues, who becomes a fire-breathing dragon each time he spits out his homemade moonshine and holds a match to it. Illicit drugs are consumed; rum, of course, is a central character. But the plot meanders, never really settling on a solitary theme around which to build this colorful world.

Rum cocktail roundup

While you may have thought rum season was long gone with the passing of the seasons, the bold flavors of the new spirit Brugal 1888 provide an excellent complement to those crisp fall and winter nights.

Evoking the quintessential flavors of fall — chocolate, roasted coffee beans, hints of cinnamon and dried fruit — Brugal 1888 can be found behind the bar at plenty of your favorite watering holes. But if you want to enjoy at home, here are a few recipes to try out.

Crusading for education, one sweet at a time

▶ She's the First is using cupcakes to spread their message of global activism ▶ How you can help

Can cupcakes change the world? Tammy Tibbetts thinks so.

Tibbetts, 25, is the founder and president of She's the First, a nonprofit organization that sponsors girls' education in developing nations worldwide. From Nov. 1-8, She's the First is spearheading the National Tie-Dye Cupcake Bake-Off, in which participants will bake and sell these colorful confections to raise money for girls' sponsorships in countries like India, Ethiopia and Guatemala.

Tibbetts says the credit for the cupcake idea goes to students in the She's the First campus chapter at the University of Notre Dame, who sold tie-dye cupcakes in their dorm to raise money for the organization. When that bake sale raked in $900, Tibbetts spread the word on the organization's website, inspiring other campus chapter members to get baking.

"We realized, 'OK, these tie-dye cupcakes are pop-

She's the First's second birthday falls during the week of the Tie-Dye Cupcake Bake-Off (Nov. 1,) and to celebrate, the organization is hosting a bake sale at Molly's Cupcakes (228 Bleecker st.) From 5 p.m. to 8 p.m. the bakery will serve the tie-dye cupcakes and donate all proceeds to the foundation.

Borrowing a page from the Coldplay playbook

► Remember when they ruled the world? ► With 'Mylo Xyloto,' these Brits may soon be back in power ► We look at the tricks they've borrowed and the treats we hope become music industry trends

pat.healy@metro.us

With "Mylo Xyloto" poised to beat first-week sales by Adele and Lady Gaga, Coldplay may have released the fastest-selling album of the year on Monday. For all of their existence, the band has been dogged by criticism that they're ripping off other bands — but that doesn't really matter when more than 100,000 people are buying the new album on the day it comes out.

Here we look at the band's fifth album and examine the ways in which it has been influenced — and the ways in which we hope it is influential. Since singer Chris Martin has said the phrase "Mylo Xyloto" has no meaning, we'll use the two words of the title to differentiate between influential (Mylo) and influenced (Xyloto).

MYLO

► Releasing a song per day in the week leading up to the official "Mylo Xyloto" release took Kanye West's G.O.O.D. Fridays concept to its logical conclusion. And one track per day seemed like the perfect taste without being too much.

► Bringing in Rihanna for "Princess of China" is part of the band's unique and continuing extension into the hip-hop world. Coldplay's relationship with the genre — which includes collaborations with Jay-Z and Kanye West, to say nothing of being sampled by 50 Cent and Lil

Wayne — is a mutual love affair. The band's fascination with hip-hop is all over "Mylo," and the dramatic symphonic intro of "Paradise" is practically begging to be rapped over.

► While Coldplay could do more to distance themselves from U2 comparisons, it's an asset that they worked with Brian Eno, the avant garde musician who had a hand in producing "Viva La Vida," as well as U2's most successful albums. He brings textured tones that blend harmoniously under the surface of songs like "Hurts Like Heaven" and "Up With the Birds."

All pop rock bands should be required to have Rihanna or Brian Eno on their albums.

XYLOTO

► Speaking of U2, there are lots of falsetto "ooh oohs" in the tradition of Dublin's finest. The electric guitar on "Major Minus" also has an unmistakable Edge quality to it.

► With "Viva La Vida," Coldplay received criticism for lifting the anthemic "ohh ohhs" in the more recent tradition of Arcade Fire. That said, there are a few instances where that band's influence is undeniable.

► The nonsense title recalls titles by The Police like "Zenyatta Mondatta." ► The video for "Paradise" and its wandering elephant recalls Blind Melon's "No Rain" video, where a misfit girl in a bee costume stumbles upon a field of frolicking bee-outfitted revelers.

► The die-cut album artwork on the physical CD, where a graffiti mural is visible beneath a cut-out flap, recalls "Some Girls" by the Rolling Stones and "Physical Graffiti" by Led Zeppelin. But it's tough to criticize a band for making artistic choices that promote the purchase of an actual product that you can have, hold and look at in different ways, rather than a boring screen shot on your iPod.

Metro's Dorothy Robinson shares her take on the world of gossip t @dorothyatmetro ■ dorothy.robinson@metro.us ► Lohan, naked, coming soon.

Everything is not coming up Lohan

While Lindsay Lohan has insisted her million-dollar debut in Playboy magazine will be "tastefully done" (ed. note: hal), sources tell TMZ that the publication got its money's worth, as the troubled actress reportedly agreed to bare all. The release date for Lohan's Playboy issue hasn't been announced, but she just wrapped four days of photo shoots for the magazine — and reportedly let little sister Ali Lohan, 17, tag along for the gig. It is important for big sisters to teach their little sisters how to make it in this world, after all.

But the eldest Lohan is practically a saint next to the girls' father, Michael Lohan. Less than 12 hours after posting bail and getting out of jail on Wednesday, he was back in the slammer, according to TMZ. Almost immediately after being released from his domestic violence arrest earlier this week, Lohan reportedly made threatening phone calls to ex-girlfriend Kate Major — while police were present in her home. And when cops busted Lohan at his hotel later that day, he attempted to escape by jumping off a third-story balcony. Instead, he landed in a tree.

In between arrests, Lohan made his case. "I did not hurt her," Lohan said of the initial domestic violence charges. "This is the way she makes money. She has me arrested and she sells the stories."

Snooki's words of wisdom

I'm going to send you into the weekend with two bits of depressing information.

1. Snooki is a New York Times best-seller for this year's magnum opus, "A Shore Thing." 2. She has yet another book out called "Confessions of a Guidette," which promises to help you join the "Snooki Style Revolution." (Considering she looks like a bad witch crossed with an Oompa-Loompa, this is one revolution I will not be signing up for.) So for your reading pleasure, here are some outtakes from this new work of art, which Snooki is currently promoting:

is waking up pale. Or without eyelashes."

► "A guidette has to know how to have fun anywhere. Like, if you're stuck in a cardboard box, you have to rock it."

► "LOVE my slippers. It's like wearing beds on your feet."

► "If you can smell hair gel from a mile away, it signals guido mating season."

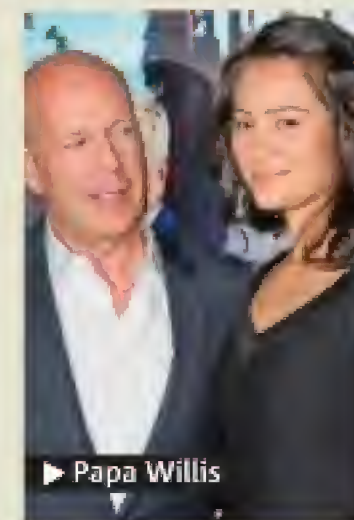

You want to join "Snooki's Style Revolution"? Look at that hat and then get back to me.

If I'm stuck in a cardboard box, I'd probably yell for help instead of trying to Vogue. But then again, I'm not a best-selling author, so what do I know?

► Papa Willis

Willis takes on fatherhood, Kutcher

Bruce Willis and his wife, Emma Heming, are reportedly expecting their first child together, according to Life & Style. "Emma is showing," a source says. The pair married in 2009. Unfortunately, Willis' celebration may be tempered by the personal troubles of his ex-wife, Demi Moore, caused by Ashton Kutcher's cheating scandal. "When Bruce found out [about Kutcher], he flipped. He plans to confront Ashton and give him a huge talking-to," the source says. "He trusted Ashton not to hurt his family and is planning to give him a piece of his mind. When he finally catches up with him, it won't be pretty."

Talking points

Tyler: I was sober!

Steven Tyler had a painful fall in his hotel room while on tour in Paraguay, but he insists it was food poisoning and not a relapse. "I started to get sick, and I just fell on my face," he says in an interview with the "Today" show. "I just passed out." The "American Idol" judge and Aerosmith frontman, who has battled drug and alcohol dependence in the past, understands why some people won't believe his story. "I get that people think that," he says. "It still bothers me a little, but it's something that I have to deal with for the rest of my life."

Jackson is a rich, dead man

Michael Jackson has topped Forbes magazine's list of top-earning dead celebrities. The King of Pop brought in approximately $170 million between October 2010 and October 2011, according to the magazine. And while the Jackson estate earned more than $100 million the previous year — when he also took the top spot on this list — he's still far ahead of Elvis Presley, who takes second place this year with $55 million. Marilyn Monroe ($27 million), Charles Schulz ($25 million) and John Lennon and Elizabeth Taylor — who tied with $12 million — filled out the top five.

Some spooky celebrity inspiration

As the Halloween weekend looms near, we take a quick look at some celebrities in costumes. Inspiration or disaster to avoid? You decide!

► 1: You could always dress like Katy Perry dressed like a toy soldier (how meta!). The (real) singer did just that at last year's Z100's Jingle Ball 2010 at New York City's Madison Square Garden last December.

► 2: Last year, Heidi Klum and Seal turned up at Klum's Halloween Party in New York City as an Alien Transformer and Silver Surfer.

► 3: At the same party, Kim Kardashian opted for a cover look as a sexy Red Riding Hood.

► 4: Nicole "Snooki" Polizzi at the "Nightmare In Jersey" Halloween party held at Jet Nightclub at The Mirage Hotel and Casino in Las Vegas last October. She was a "Pickle Princess." Of course she was.

► 5: Jamie Lee Curtis could still rock a cheerleader uniform at the CAAF's 17th annual Dream Halloween event in California last October.

► 6: In July, Ke$ha attended the Wireless Festival at Hyde Park in London in a re-imagined skeleton outfit.

► 7: At the Lucky Strike Lanes Halloween event in 2008, Pink showed up as a freaky jester, complete with a big, red wig and creepy makeup.

The black stones scattered all over the stage of the BAM Opera House — and sometimes stuffed into the pants of William Forsythe's fluent, antic dancers — turn out not to be stones at all. They're soft, they bounce. They're blobs of the gaffer's tape used to tape down the dance floor, then ripped up and usually thrown away. Forsythe, a New Yorker who's worked in Germany for decades, has been hoarding them, as he's hoarded, over a lifetime, fragments of movement, music and other detritus of contemporary culture.

In his 2008 "I Don't Believe in Outer Space," the choreography for 18 movers in casual clothes — hoodies, jeans, tank tops, socks — appears to be utterly random, but is highly structured. The dancers enter and leave through dark archways at the back of the stage, or through a side pathway plastered with cheerful posters. Their frantic activity looks chaotic, but is rendered with absolute precision.

Dana Caspersen, who's worked with Forsythe since 1988 and is now his wife, spends most of the 70-minute piece speaking into a microphone, while other performers, male and female, lip-synch her words and act them out.

Jerome Robbins mined this teenage landscape in the 20th century; Forsythe, a bolder talent, shoots it through with mime, fighting, a table-tennis game played without a ball and, of course, language. Fragments of music from Thom Willems' collage score evoke '60s jazz, '70s pop, '80s disco. The international crew of dancers is capable of anything; here they serve Forsythe's nostalgic vision, looking back and, startlingly, looking forward to what lies ahead. Which, it appears, is silence, stillness, darkness.

WEEKEND, OCTOBER 28-30, 2011

Television comes to life at 'CSI: The Experience'

"The dead can't speak for themselves," says "CSI" head honcho Dr. Gil Grissom, your supervisor at "CSI: The Experience." It's thus up to you to solve the whodunits at this new exhibition in Times Square by using the same tricks and tools that real-life CSIs employ on the job.

Upon entering "CSI: The Experience," you'll be given a log sheet for one of three crime scenes you're tasked to investigate. You'll first visit the scene of the crime to gather evidence. You'll study fingerprints, muddy footprints, firearms, DNA and clues, along the way watching video messages from "CSI" cast members and learning about the intricacies of forensic analysis. Draw conclusions in the autopsy room, where the medical examiner will use a virtual corpse to uncover just how the person died. From there, submit your findings to Dr. Grissom, find out how you fared, and watch a simulated scene of how the crime might have occurred.

"CSI: The Experience" was created in consultation with 175 forensic science experts to ensure that the material presented was true to life. It's definitely an entertaining walk-through — albeit a bit challenging to navigate — but you'll walk away feeling like a Level 3 CSI.

Horoscope

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22. It might be one of those times when the ideas of your mate or partner could be substantially better than yours. Listen attentively and be prepared to choose their plans over your own.

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21. The arrangement of your schedule will determine the degree of productivity you achieve. Spending too much time on innocuous pursuits will accomplish very little.

♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 19. For the sake of your own peace of mind, don't take yourself too seriously. Once you get upright, very little will come easily.

♒ Aquarius Jan. 20-Feb. 19. The one thing that could thwart your capability to accomplish your aims is the misuse of your imagination. Instead of anticipating defeat or conflict, focus on victory.

♓ Pisces Feb. 20-March 20. Listen to a friend who has been trying to tell you something that you don't want to hear. What she or he has to say can be very valuable and exactly what you need to achieve your goal.

♈ Aries March 21-April 19. A financial arrangement that worked out quite well for an associate might not do so well for you. Use your own judgment in this matter.

♉ Taurus April 20-May 20. If a misunderstanding arises between you and an easygoing friend, chances are it is you who has stepped over the line. Even if you think you're in the right, don't be too proud to make amends.

♊ Gemini May 21-June 20. Don't be demanding in order to get someone to be supportive of your cause — instead show cooperation with this person's needs. If you give a little first, you'll get a lot back later.

♋ Cancer June 21-July 22. Don't be hesitant to ask advice regarding something that has you stymied. However, it might be smart to go to a friend instead of a family member if it's a personal issue.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug. 22. Clinging to a negative attitude might be your biggest liability. Keep telling yourself over and over that you can be successful — and you will be.

♍ Virgo Aug. 23-Sept. 22. You're known for being quite adroit at handling most anything that comes your way, with one exception. Upon occasion you can get quite careless in handling your funds. Be especially careful today.

♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23. It's time to stop licking your wounds concerning a situation that you recently handled poorly. Instead, steer your mind toward thinking about ways to do better next time. BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Lines that make you go 'hmm'

We've all been there. Running through this week's games, you come across a line that just doesn't make any sense.

The first reaction is to think of all the money you'll be winning by making a play on X. But the proper reaction should be,

"hmmmmmm."

That's because the "shady" lines are the ones that square bettors get trapped by. It's because there's information we don't know about out there, or team X just isn't as good as we think, or it's a perfect spot for team Z.

This week's Oklahoma-Kansas State is a perfect example. Oklahoma got exposed last week, is on the road and playing a K-State team that is undefeated. Logically, the line should be close to even, right? Nope. Oklahoma is a 13.5-point favorite. METRO

Giants ready to go fishing for Fins

► Coughlin, Manning selling 0-6 Dolphins hard ► Final 'easy' game for New York before tough stretch ► Snee, Jacobs, Tuck all expected to play

The Giants are preparing for the winless Dolphins as if they are the undefeated 1972 squad because that's the only way head coach Tom Coughlin knows how. Coughlin said this week's preparation has been all about maintaining focus and professionalism because the Dolphins (0-6) aren't that far away from actually sporting a winning record.

"In my opinion, they have been in every game," Coughlin said before rattling off all the close losses Miami has suffered, including a Monday Night game against the Patriots. "They've been in it during the fourth quarter of nearly every game. When you look at their team, they have a veteran defensive football team. They have lost their [starting] quarterback [Chad Henne], so now it is Matt Moore. ... 'Respect all and fear none' is the approach we take."

The Giants (4-2) are in the position to capitalize on their current streak, winning four of their last five, before the schedule takes a brutal turn for the worse. Following Sunday's tilt, Big Blue will play nine teams with serious playoff aspirations, so it's imperative to jump on the Dolphins early and not let a bad team hang around.

It's also important to not look ahead and think of Miami as a necessary nuisance on the schedule, according to quarterback Eli Manning. "They have talent and they do good things and a

The cold, hard

football facts

A look at this weekend's NFL action through the eyes of the football stat experts at Coldhardfootballfacts.com.

Looking at 'Real

QB Rating'

Winning in the NFL typically hinges on superior QB play. And passer rating is a great way to measure that. But passer rating has one major problem: it measures only passing and nothing else. Real QB Rating measures all aspects of quarterback play: passing, plus rushing, sacks, fumbles, etc. — and spits out the performance in a number similar to passer rating.

Teams with a better passer rating are 74-29 (.718). But teams with a better "Real QB Rating" are an incredible 87-16 (.845). Here is the top 5 and other notable teams in Real QB Rating.

1. Green Bay (114.4)
2. New England (99.2)
3. New Orleans (99.1)
4. Buffalo (91.5)
5. Houston (90.3)
7. N.Y. Giants (89.4)
14. Philadelphia (77.3)
18. N.Y. Jets (73.9)
32. Jacksonville (51.0)

'Start and Sit'

Start him
Giants RB Ahmad Bradshaw broke loose for 104 rushing yards and three TDs in his last appearance in Week 6 versus Buffalo, and should be headed for another strong performance versus Miami's 18th-ranked run defense — and will be coming off a bye.

Sit him
Browns RB Peyton Hillis/Montario Hardesty We're not sure who will start, but they are up against the No. 2 run defense, San Fran, which has yet to allow a score on the ground and will be playing on their home turf.

WEEKEND FOOTBALL BETTING GUIDE

DOLPHINS 0-6
GIANTS 4-2

SUNDAY, 1 P.M.

Line: Giants -10 (O/U 43.5)
The Scoop: We know Miami won't win SU. But they are also 0-6 ATS this season.
Pick: Giants

JAGUARS 2-5
TEXANS 4-3

SUNDAY, 1 P.M.

Line: Texans -9.5 (O/U 40.5)
The Scoop: The Jags are really struggling. They are 1-5 SU in their last six and Houston always scores.
Pick: Texans

CARDINALS 1-5
RAVENS 4-2

SUNDAY, 1 P.M.

Line: Ravens -13 (O/U 43)
The Scoop: The Ravens average 26 points per game. How are they going to win by two touchdowns?
Pick: Cardinals

SAINTS 5-2
RAMS 0-6

SUNDAY, 1 P.M.

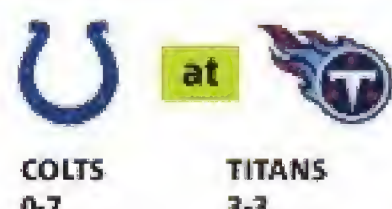

Line: Saints -13.5 (O/U 47.5)
The Scoop: Just like the Dolphins, the Rams are winless SU and winless ATS. Saints bludgeon them here.
Pick: Saints

VIKINGS 1-6
PANTHERS 2-5

SUNDAY, 1 P.M.

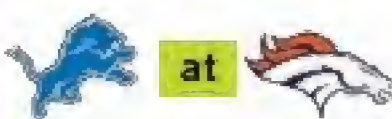

Line: Panthers -3.5 (O/U 48)
The Scoop: Carolina is a sneaky 5-2 ATS with Comeback Cam Newton.
Pick: Panthers

COLTS 0-7
TITANS 3-3

SUNDAY, 1 P.M.

Line: Titans -7.5 (O/U 43.5)
The Scoop: The Colts do keep some games close (2-5 ATS), but they're on the road. Take the Titans instead.
Pick: Jets

LIONS 5-2
BRONCOS 2-4

SUNDAY, 4:05 P.M.

Line: Lions -3 (O/U 42)
The Scoop: Tebow! Tebow Tebow Tebow! All the money is on Superman ... so go with the Lions.
Pick: Lions

REDSKINS 3-3
BILLS 4-2

SUNDAY, 4:05 P.M.

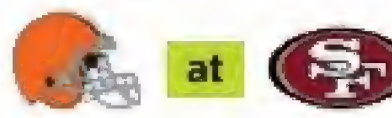

Line: Bills -6 (O/U 45.5)
The Scoop: Bills are 6-0 with the O/U, so go over. For the game, go Skins in Toronto (not Buffalo).
Pick: Redskins

BENGALS 4-2
SEAHAWKS 2-4

SUNDAY, 4:15 P.M.

Line: Bengals -3 (O/U 38)
The Scoop: The Bengals are 5-1 ATS, but remember that's usually as an underdog. They aren't here.
Pick: Seahawks

BROWNS 3-3
49ERS 5-1

SUNDAY, 4:15 P.M.

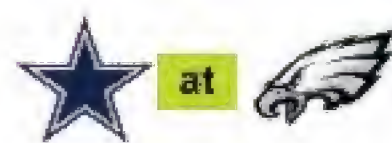

Line: 49ers -9 (O/U 38.5)
The Scoop: The Browns' Peyton Hillis is questionable. Niners are 5-0-1 ATS.
Pick: 49ers

Steelers vs. Patriots (4:15 Sunday)

LINE: Patriots -3 (O/U 52.5)

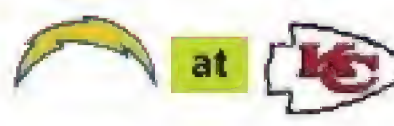

KEY INJURIES: WR Hines Ward (ankle) probable. DT Casey Hampton (shoulder) questionable. LB James Harrison (eye) out. LB Jerod Mayo (knee) questionable. LB Dane Fletcher (thumb) doubtful.
THE SCOOP: The Steelers are getting three points at home, which means the experts think this is a pick 'em. Why? We don't know. The Pats are 8-1 in the teams' last nine meetings. New England scores 31 points per game versus Pittsburgh's 21 points per game. And the Steelers are 1-4 ATS in their last five against New England. And no, being in Pittsburgh doesn't matter. They are 1-6 ATS at home in their last seven against the Patriots. I think you know our pick.
PICK: Patriots

COWBOYS 3-3
EAGLES 2-4

SUNDAY, 8:20 P.M.

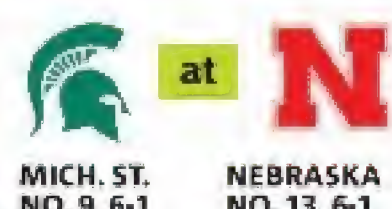

Line: Eagles -3.5 (O/U 50.5)
The Scoop: The Eagles are terrible ATS (1-4) and SU (0-5) in their last five games at home. It's tough to keep going against the "Dream Team," but the trends are not in their favor. Remember, those three points they get are for playing this at home, so it's basically straight up. That's why we go Dallas.
Pick: Cowboys

CHARGERS 4-2
CHIEFS 3-3

MONDAY, 8:30 P.M.

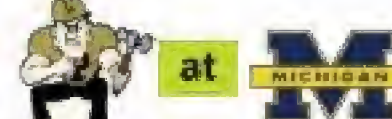

Line: Chargers -3.5 (O/U 44)
The Scoop: The Chargers are just 4-9-1 ATS in their last 15 games at Kansas City. They are also 2-6 ATS in their last eight games. That's not a good sign for a team that is perceived to be better than the Chiefs by a good margin. Arrowhead is one of the most underrated home fields as well and it'll be rocking.
Pick: Chiefs

MICH. ST. NO. 9, 6-1
NEBRASKA NO. 13, 6-1

SATURDAY, NOON

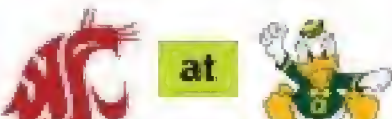

Line: Nebraska -4
The Scoop: Ignore Nebraska being 2-5 ATS; those are big spread games. Sparty won't luck out in Lincoln.
Pick: Nebraska

PURDUE 4-3
MICHIGAN NO. 17, 6-1

SATURDAY, NOON

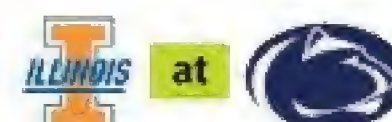

Line: Michigan -13.5
The Scoop: Purdue is 1-5 in their last six at the Big House. They'll lose, and they'll lose by two scores.
Pick: Michigan

WASH. ST. 3-4
OREGON NO. 7, 6-1

SATURDAY, 3 P.M.

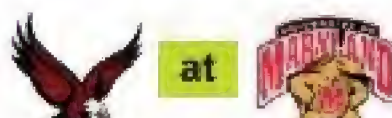

Line: Oregon -35
The Scoop: Oregon will win SU, but many players, including LaMichael James, are questionable.
Pick: Washington State

ILLINOIS 6-2
PENN STATE NO. 21, 7-1

SATURDAY, 3:30 P.M.

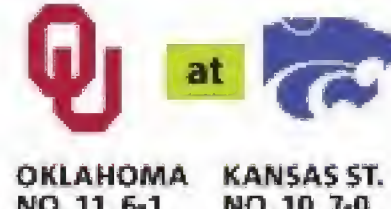

Line: Penn State -5
The Scoop: Penn St. plays ugly, low-scoring games, which is why they are 2-6 ATS this year.
Pick: Illinois

BC 1-6
MARYLAND 2-5

SATURDAY, 3 P.M.

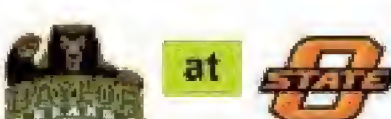

Line: Maryland -7.5
The Scoop: Both are 2-5 ATS, but at least Maryland can score.
Pick: Maryland

OKLAHOMA NO. 11, 6-1
KANSAS ST. NO. 10, 7-0

SATURDAY, 3:30 P.M.

Line: Oklahoma -13.5
The Scoop: The Bill Snyder dream ends. And the Sooners are angry after losing to Texas Tech.
Pick: Oklahoma

BAYLOR 4-2
OKLA. ST. NO. 3, 7-0

SATURDAY, 3:30 P.M.

Line: Oklahoma State -14
The Scoop: The Cowboys are 6-1 ATS and have an open path to the BCS title game. They won't let up.
Pick: Oklahoma State

GEORGIA NO. 22, 5-2
FLORIDA 4-3

SATURDAY, 3:30 P.M.

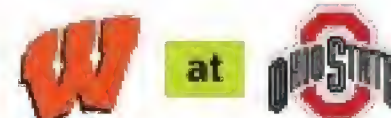

Line: Georgia -3
The Scoop: Florida has lost their last three, scoring less than 11 each game. How are they only getting 3?
Pick: Georgia

STANFORD NO. 4, 7-0
USC NO. 20, 6-1

SATURDAY, 8 P.M.

Line: Stanford -7.5
The Scoop: Game of the Week. Stanford isn't just good SU, they are 7-0 ATS. USC? Just 4-3 ATS.
Pick: Stanford

WISCONSIN NO. 12, 6-1
OHIO STATE 4-3

SATURDAY, 8 P.M.

Line: Wisconsin -7.5
The Scoop: Wisconsin bounces back from the Hail Mary. Big.
Pick: Wisconsin

RU faces WVU in huge game

The biggest game of Rutgers' season looms on Saturday afternoon when the Scarlet Knights (5-2, 2-1) host No. 25 West Virginia.

The game will go a long way in helping defog a cloudy and muddled Big East.

Rutgers, whose only two losses have come on the road, has lost both games this year by a combined four points. But against the Mountaineers, the only ranked Big East team, the challenge is going to be steep.

"I don't know [why we've struggled against West Virginia]. I mean, they've been one of the best teams in the league throughout that time, at least in the new Big East, so," head coach Greg Schiano said. "But I don't know why."

Rutgers is also going to get a boost pregame when Eric LeGrand leads the team's charge onto the field. Having been paralyzed last fall in a tragic play during a win over Army, the former Rutgers defensive lineman will be the first person out the tunnel on Saturday.

► Thierry Henry had a late goal against FC Dallas.

Red Bulls host LA

A Red Bulls team known for its star-studded offense is being carried by the team's defense.

That defense set the tone in Wednesday night's 2-0 road win against FC Dallas in the wild-card round of the MLS playoffs. Now, the Red Bulls host the Los Angeles Galaxy, a team which captured the Supporters Shield with the best regular-season record in the league, on Sunday afternoon.

For all the glamour and expense of Thierry Henry, the hype around teenage forward Juan Agudelo and the clutch goals of speedy Dane Richards, it was tenacious defending that lifted New York into the next round of the playoffs.

"We had a great playoff game, maybe not one of our best performances in terms of passing the ball, but sometimes you have to dig in and win games," Henry said. "If we want to go through, we had to play tight and have a great team performance. That's what happened even going down to 10-men. We were under pressure, but we didn't look like we'd concede a goal."

The Red Bulls are 1-0-1 against the Galaxy this season, including a 2-0 win earlier this month.

Rangers drop to Leafs in MSG debut

► Transformed Garden still holds a loss for Blueshirts ► Two goals waived off by Callahan mistakes ► Toronto piles on goals in third period

The digs are new, but the problems taking advantage of home ice remain fully intact.

The Rangers' 4-2 loss to Toronto in the 2011-12 season opener at the transformed Madison Square Garden on Thursday night was a microcosm of what has plagued the franchise in the last two years. They have a 38-34-10 mark at the Garden in that span.

John Tortorella recently termed his team's play as "spotty." It was an example of the oft-quotable coach carefully choosing his words.

What will undoubtedly irritate Tortorella was that the Rangers were unable to take advantage of an awful Jonas Gustavsson. Gustavsson entered the game with 4.86 and .857 save percentage for Toronto, but yielded just Dan Girardi's slapshot 6:23 into the match and Michael Del Zotto's unassisted slapshot with 4:20 left.

The Rangers had chances to increase their lead but apparent Michael Del Zotto and Brandon Dubinsky first-period goals were waived off by the refereeing tandem of Dennis LaRue and Ian Walsh as they ruled Ryan Callahan was in the crease on both. On both plays, Callahan was shoved into Gustavsson by Leafs skaters.

The disallowed goals came back to haunt the Rangers when Matt Lombardi equalized with a drive that beat Henrik Lundqvist between his blocker and his body 1:20 into the second.

Joffrey Lupul scored the game-winning goal 2:11 into the third. Lupul drove the net and shoveled the puck under Lundqvist.

Toronto outshot the Rangers, 36-28. Lundqvist made 32 saves.

News in brief

Yanks looking at RF Beltran

MLB. Carlos Beltran may be coming back to New York after all.

ESPN reported that the team does have interest in the former Mets outfielder, but have to make a decision on whether to pick up Nick Swisher's option first.

Of course, Scott Boras is Beltran's agent so it's no surprise he is pushing him on the team with the most money to spend — the Yankees.

Cano looking for new deal

MLB. Robinson Cano is looking for a raise coming off another stellar season.

Or at least his agent, also Scott Boras, is.

Cano still has two years (and $29 million) left on his contract, so it's unlikely the Yankees will do anything before it runs out.

"The energy in the room has been good; the back and forth has been good."

NBA. NBA Commissioner David Stern sounded a positive note as he left collective bargaining talks yesterday.

And maybe more importantly, so did Players Associated representative Derek Fisher, who said talks were progressing.
